Fiction.
After two years at the Russian front, Ernst Graeber finally receives three weeks' leave. When Graeber arrives home, he finds his house bombed to ruin and his parents nowhere in sight. Nobody knows if they are dead or alive. As his leave draws to a close, Graeber reaches out to Elisabeth, a childhood friend. Like him, she is imprisoned in a world she did not create. But in a time of war, love seems a world away. And sometimes, temporary comfort can lead to something unexpected and redeeming.
This is much more than an artistic memoir, it is a courageous account of an era. Plisetskaya joined the Bolshoi Ballet in 1943, and became one of its most acclaimed prima ballerinas (and one of the best-known in the West), performing into the 1990s. But as she makes clear, her life as of an honored artist in her homeland has been one of daily struggle: she was routinely humiliated and artistically encumbered by a punitive bureaucracy.
Sixteen-year-old Assaf, lonely and bored at his summer job, is assigned to find the owner of a mischievous dog. The dog leads him on a wild tour of Jerusalem, and Assaf meets a variety of odd characters while he picks up clues about - and falls in love with, sight unseen - the dog's owner. The dog belongs to Tamar, a girl Assaf's age, who is out to rescue a drug-addicted runaway boy while looking for her pet. Translated from the Hebrew (2000) original.
In Germany engulfed by war the wife of an influential banker fell in love with a Jewish author. His Jewish heritage led them both to death. The husband who survives her lives on to protect her memory, and their children. And the ring he passes on to his daughter Ariana remains a bond of love between them. Separated from her family, and unable to escape Germany, Ariana is finally arrested. A young Nazi officer offers her survival and hope for the future. Tragedy and a sudden twist of fate carries Ariana to America, to a chilling deception. Her past seemingly lost forever, her future uncertain, the ring she still clings to is all she has left of her father and brother. And in time it will become the bridge from her past to her future.

Title: TROYE V LODKE NE SCHITAYA SOBAKI: (THREE PEOPLE IN THE BOAT NOT COUNTING THE DOG)
The author lovingly details seventeenth century life in the Dutch city of Delft. The events in the book are viewed through the eyes of Griet, a sixteen year old Dutch girl, whose changed family circumstances force her into taking a position as a maid in the home of a renowned painter, the taciturn Johannes Vermeer. Chevalier has written a beautiful and descriptive account of the daily workings in a busy artist's household.
The biblical rivalry between Esau and his younger twin, Jacob, who tricks him out of their father's blessing, serves as the prototype for this yeasty, vibrant and sprawling modern-day family saga. The novel shuttles back and forth between the U.S. and Israel from the 1920s through the '70s, unreeling dozens of stories of sorrow, joy, death, war and love.

Author(s): MAUPASSANT, GUY DE
In five interlinked chronological tales (and a prologue), a brilliant cast of medieval sleuths created by Michael Jecks, Susanna Gregory, Bernard Knight, Ian Morson, Philip Gooden, and Simon Beaufort, pursues the bloody mystery of a relic powerful and cursed: a fragment of the True Cross.
Julia, a young Madrid art restorer, is pulled into a shadowy world of metaphor when she discovers a long-covered inscription on a Flemish painting: Who killed the knight? Art, chess and murder are intertwined in this elegant, seductive mystery.

The star of this novel is Hollywood's hottest leading lady, Lara Ivory, an impossibly perfect woman who has everything except true love. While shooting her latest film, however, Lara falls hard for a mysterious young actor, Joey Lorenzo. Traumatic childhood secrets, jealous ex-lovers, the tabloids, and even a stalker threaten but ultimately fail to destroy Lara and Joey's budding relationship.

The backdrop for this romantic adventure story is the conflict between Basque nationalists and a repressive Spanish government in the post-Franco years. Pitted against each other in a fight to the death are charismatic Basque guerrilla leader Jaime Miro and corrupt, sadistic Colonel Acoca. When Acoca brutally sacks a convent in search of Miro, four nuns escape at the urging of Sister Lucia, who has been hiding in the cloister. They flee into the forest, where they are befriended by Miro and his gang. Before crossing Spain to a rendezvous point, the group splits up to more safely evade an increasingly enraged Colonel Acoca.
